

To whom it may concern

I believe that you are writing your recommendations re climate change in Australia. I am a strong believer that climate change is an important issue that needs to seriously be addressed by our government and our country. We are all taking for granted the wonderful country we live in, and in the past have not had a lot of respect for the way we live and how it affects our environment.

I urge you to recommend that Australia sets strong, science-based targets to reduce greenhouse pollution by at least 30 percent by 2020.

It be wonderful if Australia could set a strong example to other countries and if we could lead the way in reducing greenhouse pollution.

It would be wonderful for our future generations if we can achieve 30% cut in greenhouse pollution by 2020.

Thank you for taking the time to read this email.

Regards
Sharon Patullo